Description :

PDF-dca66 | At the end of the Second World War, Hong Kong lived up to its description as "the barren island." It had few natural resources, its trade and infrastructure lay in tatters, its small manufacturing base had been destroyed and its income per capita was less than a quarter of its mother country, Britain. As a British colony it fell to a small number of civil servants to confront these difficult c... Architect of Prosperity: Sir John Cowperthwaite and the Making of Hong Kong
