Description :

PDF-f1918 | In February 1942, Singapore fell to the Japanese.

Denys Peek and his brother were just two of tens of thousands of British and Commonwealth soldiers and citizens taken prisoner. Six months later, he and his comrades were packed into steel goods wagons and transported by rail to Siam. They were to become part of the slave labour force destined for the massive construction project that would later b... One Fourteenth of an Elephant
