Description :

PDF-ef13d | Living structures: What wood can do As soon as our earliest ancestors first ventured out of their caves, they turned to wood for their protective structures. The ultimate renewable resource for architecture is also our oldest, rich with the evocation of bygone harmony between human beings and their environment. For some time pushed to the wayside by steel, concrete, and glass, wood has recen... Wood Architecture Now! Vol. 2
